1. [] the Shanghai Public Security Bureau began a census of the city in preparation for the issuance of new residence certificates. Foreign residents of Shanghai are required to apply for these certificates, which they may obtain upon presentation to the Public Security Bureau of their passports and old residence certificates. Foreigners from the North Szechuan Road area are being processed for the issuance of these new certificates.

2. [] personnel of the Shanghai Public Security Bureau and of the Shanghai Branch of the Kiangsu Commissioner's Office were stationed at all railroad stations and docks in Shanghai, and were arresting all former Nationalist civil and military personnel who were attempting to leave Shanghai. They were particularly attentive of persons leaving for the Canton area.*

3. [] Communist authorities in Shanghai established a political training class for unemployed seamen in the Yangtzeopoo area. [] another such class was opened in the Hongkew area, especially for important members of the Communist-controlled Shanghai Seamen's Union. About 500 persons are attending this class. [] After completion of this course, the men will be given seamen's technical training.

4. The Soochow Public Security Bureau has a security liaison office on Hsiayu (夏浦) Street to the rear of the Wu Yuan (吳苑) Tea House in the T'sichienlung (大監弄) district, Soochow. The head of this office is CH'IU Yin-fan (邱隱帆) who lives at 12 Shanshuli (尚書里), Soochow.

* [] Comment. [] 15,000 men were recruited in Shanghai for the police in order to tighten census and security controls. []
